EL GRECO AND THE GRAND INQUISITOR Babis Plaitakis
El Greco, a genuine and independent man, leaves Crete -his birth place when the isle was under Venetian occupation, to go first to Venice and then to Rome in search of commissions and recognition. Unique and rebellious as he is, he opposes the artistic establishment of Italy and leaves once again, to Spain this time.

In Toledo, Greco develops his personal style, which will make him famous all over the world, living through periods of great success, and others of financial and professional crisis.

He is an eccentric painter and a foreigner, which brings him into endless confrontations with the religious dogmatism of Spain, at the dangerous time of the Holy Inquisition led by the terrible Grand Inquisitor. Although his work contravenes the Rule of the Church of Spain, Greco still manages to establish his painting, at the risk of his own life.

Before he dies, El Greco passes his knowledge onto his one and only and beloved son, Jorge Manuel, hoping that he will succeed him…
