An Index to Oxfordian Publications (the Oxfordian theory is that Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford, was the man behind the "Shake-speare" mask) is a complete index of all the newsletter and journal articles, commentary, letters and reviews published by Oxfordians since J. Thomas Looney's Shakespeare Identified transformed the Shakespeare authorship debate in 1920. Today the Oxfordian movement is by far the leading theory of the truth behind "Shake-speare," and has had a significant, undeniable influence on Shakespeare studies at all levels.

The 3rd Edition of An Index to Oxfordian Publications contains more than 6,500 entries, including current Oxfordian publications through the end of 2014 and more than 1,000 newly added entries from both specialized and general interest publications from around the world (all commenting directly or indirectly on the Oxfordian theory and its impact), and a bibliography of more than 350 books on the Oxfordian theory and the Shakespeare authorship question in general.

The Index is unparalleled in its thorough coverage of the now 95-year-old Oxfordian movement and its impact on both the Shakespeare authorship question and Shakespeare studies in general, and would be an invaluable addition to any library with a significant Shakespeare collection.

"A superb resource. Any serious researcher on the Shakespeare authorship question or Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford, must own this book." -- Dr. Roger Stritmatter, Chopin State University.
